

Our approved Umbrella, CIS and Accountancy companies

At NRL, we appreciate the importance of our candidates receiving the best possible advice when determining which trading model to use whilst working with us.

Legislation prevents us from providing any advice, yet we appreciate that it is a key decision for many of our candidates and as such we have put together an approved supplier list of companies who can provide umbrella payment models and accountancy support.

All of the providers included on this list have gone through a stringent compliance audit process that has provided us with the confidence to include them on this list - however, the final decision must be yours. You'll need to explain you have been offered a contract with NRL and wish to discuss compliant pay options.

Disclaimer

As mentioned, legislation prevents us from providing independent advice on which trading model candidates should use. It is entirely your decision on the final route that you decide to take. If at any point however you are finding it hard to make a decision, or identify a supplier that suits your specific needs, then we would advise you to seek independent guidance before you engage through any company.

Our approved supplier list should only be viewed as a guide and therefore if you would like to explore the services offered by other third parties then you may do so independently. Although, if you do choose to use the services of a third party to establish a company through which you provide your services, then any information supplied by NRL (an NRL Group company) about such third parties is provided only on an impartial basis.

NRL cannot give any guarantee concerning the quality of the advice and/or documentation provided by such third parties and it is, therefore, your responsibility to ensure that any company established complies with all current relevant legislation. Further to this, NRL will not be liable for any losses, costs, claims, expenses, penalties or other liabilities incurred by that company, including those which arise as a result of your use of the services of such third parties. The list of companies displayed on this page is neither permanent nor exhaustive.

Our approved Umbrella, CIS and Accountancy companies

NRL reserves the right to remove entities from the list, should any of the providers fail to satisfy compliance checking procedures at any time. If a provider listed fails a compliance check, then we may ask you to provide your services through an alternative provider. Compliance requirements in this area are very complex and best practice is constantly changing. You should, therefore, be aware that compliance checking is not intended to be, and cannot be, a comprehensive audit on which you or any third parties can rely. Compliance checking does not replace the need for you to carry out your own checks when using professional advisors.

Our compliance checks only cover organisations based in the United Kingdom (please note: the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man are not part of the UK). We are unable to work with intermediaries that are based overseas or offshore.
